Hon^r J. Sir

Tamworth Hotel TM/11/185
Tuesday night

At length the Purser is about to be dispatched - I have taken a place for Portsmouth for tomorrow afternoon. I have settled everything to my satisfaction - I have got good ~~the~~ letters, & the sooner we sail the better. It is so late that we shall probably lose our passage (as they call it) that is not arrive at Canton till winter. I have been full of business even to overflowing. without the assistance of Mr Crabtree I should never I think have got packed up in time to send ~~to~~ my boxes by the river, but been obliged to overland them to Portsmouth. He has been most kind to me indeed, beyond even the usual kindness of one's intimate friends; if ever you meet with him or any of his friends or family, I beg you would acknowledge the obligation in my name. He is as good a hearted man as ever lived, & has an excellent understanding.

He lives No 13 Newgate Street.

I have been about all day since early morning. It is now 11 o'clock. I shall go to bed (presently) & finish this letter tomorrow morning; or perhaps only fold it up as it is. Tell Fanny I have forgotten nothing. If I had known when to address her I should have written to her I received her letter from Cambridge. I am exceedingly well, but not calm. I shall write to you from Portsmouth. Good night.
