

My dear Friend

For I am proud of the appellation I accept the books with pleasure and hope that after passing the fiery trial in this country by means of the little bits of paper / recipes / I carefully lay up I may be fortunate enough to meet you after your pilgrimage in a happier climate. I am to have the pleasure of tipping with you before you go tomorrow unpurged &

vis inertia you complain of is nothing more than the sluggishness inherent in matter
 according to some
 & the forced state of matter according to others; for to me, who am beyond these matters, they are all alike, which yours vis inertia corpori

Motion is about to overcome were it possible I should take great delight in observing your progress whether through the air or over the face of the earth in this world or the next believe me imperfectly
